Bloomberg flip-flops on perp walk

NEW YORK. Mayor Michael Bloomberg backtracked his position on perp walks Tuesday after new information was revealed in the case against Dominique Strauss-Kahn. On May 17, the mayor rebuffed perp walk critics, saying, "If you don't want to do the perp walk, don't do the crime." Yet this week, he called the perp walk "outrageous" and said, "Even if they're guilty, they're not guilty until they're convicted — and yet we vilify them for the benefit of theater, for the circus." Church fires back against gay marriage

BROOKYLN. According to Brooklyn bishop Nicholas DiMarzio, Catholic schools and parishes will no longer accept awards from Gov. Andrew Cuomo or any other elected officials who supported the gay marriage bill that passed in Albany last month. According to the Brooklyn Paper, Assemblyman Joe Lentol — who voted in support of gay marriage — said a $50 check he sent for a student in a Williamsburg parish school was returned, along with a statement from the bishop. CNN drops Eliot Spitzer

NEW YORK. Eliot Spitzer will have to find another place to spout off. The former governor, who hosted "In the Arena" after resigning from office in 2008 when he was outed as a client in a prostitution ring, was dropped by CNN Wednesday. Spitzer began his show in October with co-host Kathleen Parker, a Washington Post columnist who left the show in February. The network announced no plans for a new show involving Spitzer. METRO/AB

DSK fallout could deter rape victims

Strauss-Kahn might walk the way of Mata and Moreno ◗ Acquittals may discourage future victims ◗ Maid wants Manhattan DA off her case

New Yorkers have seen two high-profile rape cases collapse before their eyes — first, the two ex-NYPD cops accused of sex assault and now Dominique Strauss-Kahn — causing some victims' advocates to worry that the cases may discourage women from reporting rape in the future.

"If you see someone denigrated by the press, you may not want to come forward," said Lynn Frederick Hawley, of the Mount Sinai Sexual Assault/Violence Intervention program.

On Wednesday, the hotel maid accusing Strauss-Kahn of rape said she wants a new special prosecutor to handle her case, instead of embattled Manhattan District Attorney Cyrus Vance.

"Rape victims are put on trial just like the rapists."
SONIA OSSORIO, DIRECTOR OF THE NYC OFFICE OF THE NATIONAL ORGANIZATION FOR WOMEN

Vance's office has leaked damaging information about her, her lawyers claim, and she wants Vance to recuse himself, in a letter filed Wednesday obtained by Reuters.

Anonymous law enforcement sources told the media the woman lied about being gang-raped in her native Guinea in order to get asylum.

"A victim's reputation is often attacked in a criminal trial," said Sonia Ossorio, director of the New York chapter of the National Organization for Women. "Someone's going to be digging into your past to see if you ever lied on a job application; your love life will be scrutinized."

Cases like those of Strauss-Kahn and former police officers Kenneth Moreno and Franklin Mata reinforce victim-blaming, said Amy Edelstein, a rape crisis coordinator at Safe Horizons.

"When we hear about these cases, it perpetuates the stereotype that victims of rape are not credible," said Edelstein. The most common deterrents to reporting a rape are a language barrier, a past bad experience with law enforcement and a fear of being personally attacked during a trial, she said.

Club Getaway: Camp's Not Just For Kids Anymore

I never went to summer camp as a kid. My buddy Steve did, and tells me constantly about a similar experience for us "old" guys (ie two 31-year-olds) in the form of a weekend summer camp for adults called Club Getaway. After two summers I cave in and off we go. I warn him if I awake to find my boxers waiving from the flagpole or Freddie Kruger in my bed, I'm out of there, however.

We arrive, and the activities choices seem endless – waterskiing, volleyball, trapeze, mountain biking, wakeboarding, a 250 foot zip line, rock climbing, coed softball, golf, archery – even basketball with an NBA pro. We put our blackberries down, stopped debating fantasy football and spent the entire weekend like two sports-crazed warriors. We met a couple of cool girls which lead to doubles tennis matches, a kayaking race, hikes along the wooded trails and sailing out into the middle of the lake. They even convinced us to take a wine tasting class. Where else can you be in the wilderness, work on your serve, and learn about varietal wines all in the same afternoon? At night there was a bonfire complete with an acoustic guitar and s'mores. The girls seemed impressed with my rendition of Kumbaya.

Club Getaway, a weekend sports and adventure resort, is located in the Berkshire Mountains of Kent, CT, just 90 minutes from NYC by car or Getaway Bus.

Ballplayer allegedly smuggling

● Officials found six pounds of cocaine in his sneaks ● Suspect was prospect for Tampa Bay Rays

▶ Customs police say Martinez hid the cocaine in the soles of these shoes.

A former prospect for the Tampa Bay Rays Major League Baseball team was caught trying to smuggle six pounds of cocaine in his luggage last month, Customs and Border Protection officers announced Wednesday.

Cristian Vasquez Martinez, 21, was arrested at John F. Kennedy airport on June 29. Officials said they found cocaine shimmied in between the soles of four pairs of sneakers in his suitcase.

Customs officials stopped Martinez after he got off a flight in a random search, said John Saleh, a spokesman with the New York field office of Customs and Border Protection. After searching his suitcase, they found "unusually heavy" shoes, in which they found the hidden cocaine, said Saleh.

Martinez arrived at the airport from the Dominican Republic, on a flight from Santo Domingo.

Martinez was a pitcher for a Tampa Bay Rays affiliate team in the Dominican Republic, said Patrick Kurish, a spokesman for the Rays. But Martinez was released last month for "performance issues," said Kurish.

Using whatever is at hand

NEW YORK. This is the second time in as many weeks that someone has been caught trying to smuggle cocaine through shoes at JFK. Last week, $107,000 worth of coke was found in shoes left in an abandoned suitcase, also from the Dominican Republic.

But shoes are not the only thing smugglers use. Agents have found drugs smuggled in ceramic cats and cargo shorts — and last year, agents arrested a New Jersey man for trying to get six pounds of cocaine through JFK in a Nintendo Wii. ● METRO/AB

Twitter funding puts value at $7B

Following successful IPOs of other tech firms, social networking site is raising the stakes of its valuation

Twitter Inc., the microblogging site that lets users post 140-character messages, is raising funding that values the startup at about $7 billion, said a person with knowledge of the matter.

Twitter's worth has almost doubled since December, when it received a $200 million investment led by Kleiner Perkins Caufield & Byers that valued the company at $3.7 billion. The startup was pegged at about $1 billion in 2009, a person familiar with the matter said at the time. SharesPost Inc., an exchange for shares of closely held companies, has assessed Twitter's current worth at $6.8 billion.

Twitter is continuing to raise funds from private investors, rather than joining other social-media companies in filing for an initial public offering. LinkedIn Corp., a professional-networking site, went public in May. Since then, Groupon Inc., the biggest daily-deal site, and Zynga Inc., the top developer of Facebook games, have both filed for IPOs. BLOOMBERG

Study: Happy apes are longer-living

Scientists say the happiest orangutans in zoos can swing years longer ◐ Could improve our own lifespans

Just like humans, happier orangutans are more likely to live longer, new research says.

These findings could help illustrate how happiness has evolved in primates and human beings, Dr. Alexander Weiss, the lead author of the study, told Metro.

"Certain traits among orangutans that are linked to happiness can be explained by genetic differences, which is also true for humans and even chimpanzees," he said.

Weiss and his research team at the University of Edinburgh and the University of Arizona asked zookeepers who worked closely with captive orangutans to take part in the study. The carers answered questions about the animals, their personalities and attitude.

7 yrs

Out of almost 200 orangutans studied, researchers found that those who scored as "happier" by their keepers were more likely to be alive up to seven years later.

The questionnaire posed four main questions to the animal carers, including how much time each orangutan spent "happy, contented and enjoying itself." The carers were also asked how happy they would be if they were the animal in question.

"The results of our study do suggest that a zookeeper's impression of happiness is probably a good indicator of an individual orangutan's health and welfare," Weiss said.

'GENES PLAY A ROLE'

Dr. Alexander Weiss from the University of Edinburgh:

Why check up on orangutans' moods and habits?
We learn from studying orangutans that it may be possible to learn about the evolution of happiness. This could lead to a better understanding of what makes ... humans happy. It may also benefit orangutans if the zoos and other facilities in which they are housed pay attention. They might indicate problems that are not detected in normal health screens.

What made certain orangutans happier than others?
We are working on a study that suggests genes play some role. We also know that orangutans that are higher in the personality dimensions of extraversion and agreeableness and lower in the personality trait of neuroticism are seen as happier. However, we know little else about what may play a role in their happiness. METRO

It's always sunny with Charlie Day

The 'Horrible Bosses' star on playing a meek dental hygienist who does not want to be hit on by Jennifer Aniston It's a hard sell indeed Day offers some spoilers for Season 7 of 'It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia'

Charlie Day, who is mostly known for his illiterate, glue-sniffing character on FX's "It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia," has been put in the unlikely position of explaining why being pursued for a sexual liaison by a character resembling Jennifer Aniston is unpleasant. It's not an easy job.

"Most men don't cheat on their wives. Not all, but close," he offers rather sheepishly. In the new comedy "Horrible Bosses," he plays a dental hygienist to Aniston's man-eating dentist. Entirely devoted to his fiancee, Day's character, Dale, is terrified by his boss's blackmailing seduction. As the logic of the film goes, he and his buddies — played by Jason Sudeikis and Jason Bateman — therefore decide to kill Dale's boss along with their own. Dark as it may seem, "Bosses," much like "Sunny," isn't afraid to cover controversial topics.

"I don't think anything is too taboo to make funny," says Day. "Murder is a terrible thing. But set against this backdrop, with these guys that have no business trying to commit a murder going about it, then it becomes a comedy. The things aren't inherently funny. It's how you tell the joke."

GETTY IMAGES

▶ "Horrible Bosses," starring Charlie Day, opens Friday.

That's where the overlap between "Horrible Bosses" and "It's Always Sunny" — for which Day is also a writer and producer — lies. He has just wrapped production on Season 7 of the sitcom, which depicts the depraved lives of a group of egocentric bottom-feeders. No topic — from abortion to cats wearing mittens — is too crooked or bizarre.

"Managing to fly under the radar enough so that we don't lose our street cred, but be a big enough hit that we're actually a very successful show, has been a really nice balance," says Day, who also offers up spoilers for the new season, premiering in September: "One of my favorite episodes is a 'Toddlers and Tiaras'-esque thing, a kiddie pageant episode, which is just ridiculous," Day says. "Frank has gotten involved in pageantry. He thinks it's grown women he's getting involved with but it happens to be kids — and he has to go through with it. It's another great season."

HEIDI PATALANO

Q&A: Facial hair

Does having a beard make you funnier?

"Having a beard just makes me look older," Day says. "Sometimes when I shave it off I feel like I still look like I'm 15. So, yes and no. Mac [on "It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia"] grows his beard a little bit longer this season. He's definitely funnier, but I've seen some unfunny people with beards. I don't know that it makes people unfunny. I just know that there are plenty of people who grow beards who still remain completely humorless."

There's nothing wild about this 'Zookeeper'

▶ Kevin James stars alongside a cast of furry creatures — including this animatronic gorilla voiced by Nick Nolte — in "Zookeeper," opening Friday.

Kevin James wanted to make a family movie — one that would be stupendously inoffensive. And with "Zookeeper," he has managed to do just that — with talking animals! — in a way that amazingly isn't as boneheaded as the premise sounds. As a man passionate about his zookeeping job, James' character gets advice from his talking animals (voiced by the likes of Nick Nolte and Cher) on how to win back an ex. It's goofy, obvious, contrived and corny (there is a trip to T.G.I. Friday's with a dancing gorilla, after all), but the humor is silly enough to amuse kids without resorting to toilet humor or sleaze for the adults. With this box of chocolates, you know exactly what you're going to get — and that isn't necessarily a bad thing.

Yeah, these 'Bosses' are pretty bad

- A plot to kill management seems implausible
- At least the dumb idea provides a few good laughs

'Horrible Bosses'
Director: Seth Gordon
Cast: Charlie Day, Jason Bateman, Jennifer Aniston, Jason Sudeikis
Rating: R
Grade: ●●○○○

Movie studios know that while many people are unemployed right now, those of us who have jobs still feel pretty stuck in what we're doing. No one's happy. No one feels hopeful about the future. Ergo, a movie about three dim men who, suffering under the tyranny of terrible management, decide the only way to fix things is to kill their bosses. Should we feel insulted? Judging by the quality of this movie, maybe.

Director Seth Gordon has the best actors you could ask for in place. The three demeaned laborers — Jason Sudeikis, Jason Bateman and Charlie Day — do work well with what they've got. They gel as a group, even if the jokes themselves aren't that funny.

The biggest problem here lies in the implausibility of what they're doing. Would anyone really decide to kill a gorgeous boss (Jennifer Aniston) who is coming on to her subordinate (Day)? You can sense the screenwriters wrote and rewrote the script to try to make sense of the plot, to make it seem like murder was the only answer. Along the way there are a few great laughs — especially with the presence of Jamie Foxx as Motherf—er Jones, a con artist who becomes the trio's counselor in all things homicidal. But in the end, the premise still feels dead on arrival.

*For Apple Advantage Savings and Money Market Accounts (MMA), interest earned on daily balances of $1 or more at these tiers: $1-$9,999: .10% Annual Percentage Yield "APY;" $10,000-$24,999: 1.10% APY; $25,000-$49,999: 1.10% APY, $50,000-$99,999: 1.10% APY, $100,000-$499,999: 1.10% APY, $500,000 or more: .10% APY. To earn stated APY, you must maintain an active Grand Yield Advantage (GYA) NOW Checking Account with a minimum of six customer transactions per statement cycle, otherwise the APY earned will be reduced to that being paid on the lowest balance tier. Once your GYA NOW Checking resumes required activity, the APY on your Apple Advantage (AA) Savings or MMA will be restored to the corresponding balance tier beginning with the next statement cycle. At our discretion, the APY on your linked AA Savings or MMA may also be lowered and/or your account closed if required transactions in the GYA NOW account are repeatedly only nominal and/or offsetting deposits and withdrawals. For AA Savings or MMAS, $10,000 minimum deposit required to open and avoid $25 monthly maintenance fee. GYA NOW Checking may be opened with $100 minimum deposit. $2,500 minimum daily balance required to earn stated 0.90% APY and avoid monthly maintenance fee. See specific account disclosure for details. Fees may reduce earnings. APYs disclosed effective as of 5/10/11. Guaranteed rate cannot be changed by the Bank during the 12 month guaranteed period. GYA NOW Checking APY may be changed at the Bank's discretion. Funds used to open account cannot be from an existing Apple Bank account.
ATM or terminal operator surcharge may apply.

▶ Michael Gladis guest stars on Sunday's episode of "Leverage," airing at 9 p.m. on TNT.

Gladis glad to be back

Michael Gladis uses 'Leverage' to return to drama What the 'Mad Men' alum learned from Clint Eastwood while shooting Hoover biopic 'J. Edgar'

After three seasons on the retro "Mad Men," Michael Gladis leaps back to the present day to join the cast of "Leverage." As a PR pro specializing in damage control, Gladis — who says he doesn't even have a publicist himself — shakes things up in this Sunday's episode, "The 15 Minutes Job."

You played a copywriter on "Mad Men," and now you're a publicist on "Leverage." Are drawn to characters with media careers?

Not particularly, it's just the way it's panned out so far. I hope that I'll get to play some other types of characters on film that'll allow me to surprise myself and other people. That's the whole fun of acting. But for right now, I'll take any work I can get — so if it's a brainy literary character, I'll do that. I'm sure I'll play a moron at some point.

How was it working on the "Leverage" set compared to that of "Mad Men"?

Every set is different, just because every show is different. Being a guest star is always a very difficult thing because you're trying to serve a preexisting vision. They've come up with the performance style, and there's a writing style, and you really have to suss that out as soon as you get there and try and perform on their level, with them, in the way that they're used to performing. It's always a really great challenge but it's also really fun.

How did you get ready to step into that world?

Obviously, your work as an actor is to prepare your role. Then you just have to be very, very light on your feet and respond to the director and to your fellow actors. And be observant. And be respectful. [And don't] impose yourself or your ideas on their production, but really serve it.

Q&A

You're in the upcoming "J. Edgar" movie. How was it working with Clint Eastwood?

Clint Eastwood has a reputation that he moves incredibly quickly. It's pretty much guaranteed that he'll come in on time and under budget, and so I was warned that I may only get one or two takes of my scene. And that's pretty much the way it happened; I think I got three takes. And I have an incredibly small role, it's a blink-and-you'll-miss-me role, but I did it because it's a dream — Clint Eastwood's one of my heroes. I'd be an extra in one of his movies.

'Measure' looks at ambiguity of morals

- Public Theater's Shakespeare in the Park comedy is dark, deceptive
- A look at 'Measure for Measure,' about corruption and hard choices

With a title taken from the Bible (Matthew 7.1-2), it's no wonder "Measure for Measure" — currently playing in repertory with "All's Well That Ends Well" in Central Park — broaches moralistic ground. Yet by contorting the role of judgment and mercy with regard to both law and religion, the play is murky about who's wrong or right.

Should Isabella (Danai Gurira) preserve her virginity at the cost of her brother's life? Must Lord Angelo (Michael Hayden) uphold outdated laws, like death for premarital sex? Is the duke (Joe Forbrich), who holds himself superior yet sets in motion much of the play's deception, acting in his constituents' best interests or merely entertaining himself? These questions are not only subject to audience discretion; sadly, actors seem unable to commit, often becoming louder when scenes call for nuance. In the end, it's the capricious sinners — backstabbing Lucio (Reg Rogers) and facile Pompey (Carson Elrod) — who seem most steadfast by maintaining their self-serving intents.

Despite being categorized as a comedy — in that everyone marries at the end rather than dies — this plot's content is bawdy and dark. Costumes and sound superbly capture this tone with leather and corsets, rumbling growls and haunting melodies. Appreciated but underused is the presence of masked demons lurking in the shadows at pivotal points. In the final moment, one last question is posed but unanswered, leaving the heroine in a state of perplexity — and neatly knotting off the noose proven of philosophical or religious fixedness.

The British are coming ... well, to LA at least

▶ Catherine, Duchess of Cambridge, and Prince William, Duke of Cambridge, appeared in Yellowknife, Canada, on Tuesday.

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge are currently visiting North America on a 12-day overseas tour. And now that they're moving on from seeing so much of Canada (what gives, haven't you guys ever heard of New York City?), they're heading to Los Angeles on Friday, where William will host a $4,000-a-head sit-down dinner for the British Academy of Film and Television Arts, of which he is the president. But author Christopher Anderson of the New York Times best-selling book "William and Kate: A Royal Love Story" says that the royal pair aren't too excited about the evening, even though the star-studded event will include "a very nice celebrity list," per the organizers.

"While everyone in Hollywood has been jockeying for an invitation to the 'Brits to Watch' BAFTA dinner at the legendary Belasco Theater being hosted by the royal couple, neither William nor Kate seem very interested in cozying up to stars," Anderson dishes to Metro. "My sources tell me that William is far more interested in what polo pony he'll be riding when he competes in a charity match in Santa Barbara earlier that same day. Kate, who is severely allergic to horses, never misses one of William's polo matches and must always have medication on hand to stave off an attack."

And that's the first time a royal has picked hanging out with a horse over a famous person since Catherine the Great.

Watch out, Jolie-Pitt children

Anderson says royal pregnancy watchers might get a little Christmas present this year — and all the Suris and Maddoxs of the world might be downsized a bit.

"I wouldn't be surprised if we had an announcement of a royal pregnancy by the end of the year," the author says. "Diana gave birth to William less than a year after her marriage, which seems to be the general rule among royals. I was a senior editor at People back in 1982 and handled the magazine's coverage of William's birth — the story was as big, if not bigger, than the royal wedding itself," he adds. "The media, and the world, went completely baby-crazy. If anything, this will be an even bigger media event. Carrying both the legacy of the royal family and Diana's legacy, this will unquestionably be the most famous child in the world."

Richards' slim secrets

Denise Richards is 40 years old, which is surprising because she acts 20 years younger. Her secret to staying slim: "I am very active," she tells Self.com. "I found what works for my body — everyone's body is different, and I think it's best to find what works for you. For me it's Pilates and dance. My diet is 80 percent vegetarian and I eat all day long. I have lots of little meals; it's best for me. My abs get the best workout with my Pilates reformer — I had two C-sections and it was the only thing I found that got my tummy flat."

Weekend recipe

Buttermilk fried chicken

Anyone who resides south of the Mason-Dixon Line can tell you the hallmarks of Southern fried chicken. The skin needs to be well-seasoned and crispy, and the meat inside moist and tender. These buttermilk fried drumsticks meet the criteria, and would be perfect alongside macaroni salad at your next picnic.

▶ You'll eat salad next week.

Ingredients

- 1 quart (4 cups) buttermilk
- 2½ teaspoons kosher salt, plus more as needed
- ¼ teaspoon plus 1 pinch dried thyme
- 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- ⅛ teaspoon plus 1 pinch cayenne pepper
- 8 chicken drumsticks
- 1 quart (4 cups) vegetable oil
- 1 cup all-purpose flour

Directions

1. Place the buttermilk in a resealable plastic bag, add 1 ½ teaspoons of the salt, ¼ teaspoon of the thyme, ½ teaspoon of the black pepper and ⅛ teaspoon of the cayenne pepper and stir to combine.
2. Add the chicken to the bag and turn to coat in the buttermilk. Seal the bag and refrigerate 30 minutes or overnight. When you're ready to cook the chicken, let it sit at room temperature in the marinade for 30 minutes.
3. Pour the oil into a large, straight-sided frying pan or cast iron skillet (it should reach halfway up the side). Heat over medium-low heat until the oil reaches between 350°F and 360°F on a candy/fat thermometer, about 20 minutes. (If you don't have a thermometer, test it by sprinkling flour in the oil. If the oil's hot enough, it will sizzle, then quickly dissipate.)
4. Meanwhile, combine the flour, the remaining 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon black pepper, pinch of cayenne and pinch of thyme in a shallow dish. Set a wire rack over a baking sheet and set aside.
5. When the oil is ready, remove 4 of the drumsticks from the buttermilk, letting the excess drip off. Coat the chicken in the flour mixture, shaking off the excess. Carefully lay the pieces in the oil and fry until cooked through and golden brown, flipping halfway through, about 20 minutes total. (An instant-read thermometer inserted into the thickest part of the drumstick should read 160°F to 165°F. If you don't have a thermometer, cut a small slit down to the bone; the juices should run clear and there should be no pink at the bone.) Place the drumsticks on the rack and season with salt. Repeat with the remaining chicken.

Sip cool this summer

There's a right way to order a fancy mojito in a packed bar, and then there's a really wrong way We checked in with a veteran barkeep

How to get a drink in a crowded bar ...

It's all about patience, tipsy grasshopper — and a smile wouldn't hurt. "Honestly, if it's a good bartender, just approach the bar, make eye contact and look pleasant," says Lee Vick, who tends bar at Philly's Rum Bar. "We see you, and we want to take care of you as soon as we can."

And how to not get a drink

"Don't wave money, don't knock or tap on the bar, don't poke at us," says Vick.

Wait — did he say poke?

"Yeah, they'll reach back and poke at you — it can get annoying."

Seriously guys? Stop that right now.

Pay this way

Want to open a tab? The answer is yes. "I would much rather somebody open a tab — it's just so much easier and faster," says Vick. "I've been doing this for 20 years, and I've never lost a credit card."

If you have to pay the next day ...

Vick won't misplace your card, but you might. If you forget to close out your tab at the end of the night, don't worry too much — you'll have plenty of walk-of-shame company. "It happens all the time. Just call the next day and say that you left your card. We keep them for two or three weeks, because it's amazing how long people will not realize they lost their credit card," says Vick.

A tipping tip: Bring cash. They won't be able to add a tip to the card.

Patience makes the Soundgarden grow

It's been 20 years since the heyday of grunge, but Chris Cornell is ready to rock again with the band that put him on the map There is a lot less pressure on the band, but that means the new album may take a while

Chris Cornell has a practical approach to Soundgarden these days. He does what he does because he and his band like it, not because a record company says they have to. The singer, fresh off a solo tour, says he looks forward to the release that playing aggressive music with his old band gives him.

You've been doing a lot of solo touring. How different is the mind-set between those shows and Soundgarden shows?
Lately I've been doing what I call the "Songbook" tour, which is pretty much just me and an acoustic guitar, so it's about as opposite as you can get. ... In that way, you don't really have to strive for balance. One kind of takes care of the other. After touring around for a month and a half, doing that [acoustic tour], I was really looking forward to getting in the studio with Soundgarden and playing loud, aggressive rock music. And then after doing that for a while it will feel great to just sit alone and play an acoustic guitar. So in that way I think I'm pretty fortunate to be able to have such dramatic extremes.

The last time we spoke, you said this about Soundgarden: "To me, making a record makes more sense than doing a live show. And even that would be something that I don't think would make sense. It doesn't seem like anything like that would ever happen, so the idea to reform just to play live seems even more ludicrous to me." When did you depart from that way of thinking?
I guess once we were actually in a room, talking about doing different things to sort of service the legacy of Soundgarden. ... We didn't get back together to immediately get an album out because we want to go on tour and get paid. We've done it in a time that was comfortable and in a way that makes sense to us, where everyone's inspired and having fun, writing and recording new material at a pace that feels good with the concern that it's a great record that we want to put out. ... [There is] nothing else, no other concern at all. When it comes out it doesn't matter, as long as we're happy with it.

▶ Still grungy after all these years: Chris Cornell, front and center, says there isn't as much pressure on the band, so they're taking their time. To read more with Cornell, visit www.metro.us/mixtape.

Q&A: Getting laid back

Is the band proceeding with caution so you don't fall into the traps that caused tension and led to the breakup?

Well, I think the main one is avoiding concerns about scheduling. I suppose there was always a factor of record companies worrying about competition, other record labels and what they're releasing by what bands that would be in direct competition with our band. And that's concerned with a lot of different things — with touring, with radio airplay, with TV airplay and all the things that go along with it. And we're not really in that position anymore. We're just Soundgarden, and we're just in that stage of being a band that there isn't really competition. There isn't really another band that can rush in and take our place if we're not ready. And that's made everything pretty relaxed.

Smells like retro spirit

Nostalgia seems to operate on 20-year cycles. In the '80s there was a great big groovy '60s revival, and in the last decade, many musicians totally took their cues from the '80s. It's only fitting that the '90s are coming back now. Here are a few signs.

DENIS O'REGAN/GETTY IMAGES

- Dave Grohl told New Music Express last week that he played "Smells Like Teen Spirit" for the first time in 17 years when Nirvana bassist Krist Novoselic did a guest spot on the new Foo Fighters album. "Krist says, 'You wanna run through some oldies?' Me and Pat [Smear, who is now in Foo Fighters and was also in Nirvana] look at each other. I mean, that's something I've never considered before. I was like 'OK,'" Grohl told NME. He said it was like "a ghost."
- Pearl Jam headline their own festival on Labor Day weekend to celebrate their 20 years together as a band.
- Beady Eye is Oasis, minus Noel Gallagher. Though they aren't resting on laurels by just playing Oasis hits in concert, they probably wouldn't pack so many people into their shows if it wasn't at least a possibility that they'd bust into "Wonderwall."
- Godsmack, who became popular in the late '90s, is a headliner of this year's Rockstar Energy Mayhem Festival. Singer Sully Erna says he thinks that the rock of the '90s is back for the same reason it became popular in the first place: "If history has taught us anything, it's that rock 'n' roll always comes back in one form or another," he says.
- 311 is touring with Sublime with Rome. It's Sublime's drummer and bassist with a new frontman who is a big dude like the late Bradley Nowell. To hear him sing "Wrong Way," you might swear it's 1996 again.

The Chelsea Hotel

Not into gambling? The Chelsea Hotel, Atlantic City's only non-gaming hotel, is offering happy hours, fashion shows, live entertainment and more throughout the weekends this summer. Those spending the day at the beach can rent personal cabanas and sign up for beach volleyball, horseshoes and other seaside games — with winners receiving free drinks and appetizers at Teplitzky's at The Chelsea. Golfers can take advantage of the hotel's Swingers Package, which includes a round of golf at Linwood Country Club. Adventurous types can reach new heights when parasailing as part of The Chelsea's Plunge into Summer package.

The Sands Hotel

If Atlantic City is too far off your radar, the new Sands Hotel at the Sands Resort Casino Bethlehem might be perfect for your next gambling getaway. Situated an hour and a half from New York City, Sands is located on the property of the former Bethlehem Steel Factory, and much of the architecture is left intact for visitors to tour. The 10-story, 300-room building was given a "stylized, industrial look," according to Bob DeSalvio, president of the Sands Casino Resort Bethlehem, and photos of former steel workers adorn the walls. Guests have seven dining options to choose from, including Emeril Lagasse's first-ever Italian restaurant, Emeril's Italian Kitchen, which serves up delicious dishes such as burrata mozzarella salad, housemade meatballs with ricotta and polenta and vanilla bean panna cotta.

Finding a career that satisfies your sweet tooth

Thierry Muret, former chemist and current Master Chocolatier at Godiva, on his unusual career path
'It's all about knowing your consumers,' he tells us

As Godiva's Master Chocolatier, Thierry Muret has one of the sweetest jobs in the world. We chatted with him as he gave us a sneak peak of the Ultimate Dessert Truffles Collection, a new line in mouth-watering flavors like Crème Brulee, Chocolate Lava Cake and Tiramisu. So how can you get to develop chocolate for a living like he does? Here's his advice:

FOR INSIDER INFO ON NEW GODIVA TRUFFLES, VISIT WWW.METRO.US

Get educated: The typical path involves culinary, pastry and confectionary training, plus an apprenticeship, Muret says; however, he took an entirely different route. "I started not in the food industry at all. I started as a chemist, and my sister said, 'Would you be interested to open a chocolate shop?' I said, 'Yes, but I don't know absolutely anything about confections,' and she said, 'Well, learn.' I studied and then I came here in the States, opened my shop and then Godiva noticed me."

Be passionate: "If you're just doing it to be a star, it doesn't work — you need to really love the material," he says. "And coming from chemistry, I had that scientific background that allowed me to understand what was going on when I was working by hand, and I really fell in love with the complexity of chocolate making. You need to fall in love with what you study. A lot of people think that making chocolate is very easy. It isn't. It's extremely complex. This is a job that requires you to be on-site for at least 10 hours a day."

Study your customers: "It's all about knowing your consumers [and] knowing their expectations. Right now we are working for the Mid-Autumn celebration, so a brand new mooncake collection with five pieces will come out. I have a chef working on that here, but I contacted a chef in China to really see if we are into the expectation of the Chinese custom."

▶ The devil's food is in the details: "When you're passionate about it, you're looking forward to the details," says Muret.

More tips

Pay attention to details: "[At Godiva,] all the shell molding is done by hand, all the dipping is done by hand, all the decoration is done by hand. Detail is essential — that's the difference between the mass market and the super premium. When you're passionate about it, you're looking forward to the details."

Find a brand that fits your style: "All chefs have a style. It's very difficult to define, but you sense it right away. The hardest part for an executive [is] to keep all the styles in one company style, but with [a] little differentiation. To hire one chef, I interviewed 52 of them; people are saying, 'Why are you eliminating this one?' Because he doesn't have that proper style."

Never stop learning: "When you stop learning, you should get out of the profession," he says.

▶ Want more expert advice? Bailo's new book, "The Essential Phone Interview Handbook" is available now.

4 Steps to acing a phone interview

This seemingly simple chat is anything but Paul Bailo, CEO of Phone Interview Pro, on how to make it through the toughest type of interview

Take advantage of your home court

"A phone interview is like an open-book test — have everything in front of you," says Bailo of your resume and any written questions you have for the hiring manager. "The other thing we tell people is to go on LinkedIn and have a picture of the person interviewing you in front of you. It brings it down to a more personal, human level."

Put down your cell phone

It doesn't so much matter where you do the interview as what you do it on: namely, on a designated landline. "Some people feel comfortable on their office phone, some people feel more comfortable in the kitchen. But no cell phone," says Bailo. "People who are looking for a job need to have a Batphone. And that phone number is only given out to people who are looking to interview you."

Be yourself

"The No. 1 problem is: People aren't themselves on phone interviews. They try to be someone they're not," says Bailo.

This is especially harmful, because the person on the other end doesn't have any other way to relate to you. Accents, he notes, can work in your favor because they create a point of interest for the person on the other end of the line.

"With the phone interview, you lose 80 percent of your communication. All your social cues are gone. They only thing you have to work with is your voice. What you say, how you say it, all matter," Bailo says.

MONICA WEYMOUTH
monica.weymouth@metro.us

Play hard to get

Interviewing, unfortunately, is a lot like dating.

"Don't pick up the phone on the first ring. For a scheduled phone interview, the second or third ring is safe. But if you miss the fourth ring, let it go to the answering machine. By the fourth, they're not happy with you. Give them 30 seconds, then call them back with a business explanation. Now, they've switched modes and they'll appreciate you calling them back."

Do, don't let freedom ring

RE: "GAY RIGHTS AND WRONGS": For those who believe the government should stay out of the business of consenting adults entering into contracts, such as regulating gay marriage, remember that this could also apply to polygamy, polyandry and incestuous relations. For those who truly believe it's not the government's business to regulate such matters, this should not be a deterrent. SEAN CASSIDY, VIA E-MAIL

It's not over. The next agenda for the homosexual community is to have children taught that two men having sex with each other is as natural as a man and women having sex. CHRIS GRAHAM, NEW YORK

Many people writing in about gay marriage seem to fail to realize that in our culture, "marriage" is a business arrangement. It is important regarding property ownership, inheritance, estate taxes and who may sit with a chronically ill person and make medical decisions. Not all couples marry for reproduction of the human race; some adopt, and/or use surrogates or other means. The government should stay out of anything that smacks of religious ideals. ROBERT LAWRENCE, VIA E-MAIL

Gay "marriage" isn't about contracts or rights, or some nonexistent link to magnetic polarity, or defiance of biblical didactic lessons, or fodder for comedic commentators; it's about secular morality being imposed by governmental fiat with the intended purpose of allowing 3 percent of the population to be able to tell the other 97 percent, "See, we're just like you" — giving rise to the appearance that the gay lifestyle is mainstream when actually nothing could be further from the truth. ROBERT SMITH, VIA E-MAIL

Afghan army has a problem

Our soldiers get between 80 days and one year plus 80 days training before being sent to Iraq or Afghanistan to fight. How is it that Afghanis can't be trained in 10 years to fight for themselves? CHARLES MICHAEL COUCH, BED-STUY

Overeating, an American sin

Has anyone ever considered how many homeless and hungry people could have been fed by the contestants of Nathan's hot dog eating contest? It's gluttony, a biblical sin, at its all-American worst! I think it should be a hot dog-making contest instead, with all proceeds going to as many needy people as possible. J. ANDREW SMITH, BLOOMFIELD, NJ

Horoscope

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. There's a possibility that you could be a bit disorganized when getting your operation in gear at first, but don't worry, you'll quickly get your act together and achieve results.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. There is a chance that your first ideas might not be your best ones, but if you are prepared to make adjustments, everything will work out great. Your second thoughts will be the clincher.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Take plenty of time to be a comparison shopper, because you could be somewhat of a compulsive buyer right now. It might take a bit of digging to unearth the bargains.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Those with whom you'll be involved either socially or business-wise will take their cues from you. If you're easygoing, they'll respond in kind. If you're abrasive, so will they be.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. A pal of yours who is much better at engineering a loan than paying one off could tap you for an advance. Don't be caught off guard and let him hit you up.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Don't jump to conclusions and catalog information as fact until you've had time to check things out. Early news could be either far too limited or extremely distorted.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Only when you have the time to fully develop any opportunities that are presently at hand will you know for sure where they will take you. Don't prematurely assume the results.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. It won't be due to sheer luck that things will work out so well for you. Most good things that happen will be the result of you utilizing your smarts.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Although you might feel a bit uneasy about someone doing something for you, you'll stand back and let the person do it.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. If you could use some help, don't suffer in silence – let your needs be known. There are a number of people who'll step up to the plate and knock out a dinger for you.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Don't worry, you'll have the edge should you find yourself smack in the middle of a competitive involvement. Use all your energy concentrating on winning. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Lester heads to DL

The Red Sox have put left-hander Jon Lester on the disabled list with a lower lat muscle strain. He suffered the injury Tuesday night after four no-hit innings against Toronto. Lester is expected to miss 2-4 weeks. Manager Terry Francona said it doesn't appear serious. "This is kind of a no-brainer. He didn't put up much of a fight."

NHL FREE AGENCY ROUNDUP

FRONT AND CENTER

Rangers kick off their offseason moves with a big signing, plus some big expectations
Islanders, Devils still have some work to do Metro grades first week of free agency

JEFF GROSS/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Brad Richards is joining the Rangers next season, and he'll have a lot of pressure on him to spark the team's power play.

The New York Rangers' unspoken — but widely understood — need on breakup day was Brad Richards.

That need was filled 68 days later.

The Rangers and Richards agreed to a nine-year, $60 million contract over the July 4 weekend. The pact, in which there is a no movement clause, calls for Richards to earn $57 million in the first six years and $1 million in each of the final three years while being an annual $6.67 million hit to the Rangers cap.

The Richards signing should improve the Rangers offensive production in the near future. The Rangers were a playoff team in 2010-11 due to its willingness to grind along the boards and forecheck. But the lack of skill was evident in their first round playoff series loss to Washington.

Head coach John Tortorella said that organizational decision-makers determined that the Rangers' biggest needs were "an elite center ice man" and "a guy to run the power play.

"We got that with Richie."

The Rangers' power play was mostly ineffective in the regular season, scoring 16.9 percent of the time. It became impotent in the playoffs. The Rangers only scored once on 20 man-advantage chances against Washington.

Equally as important, Richards will center Marian Gaborik on the top line. Gaborik fell from 42 goals in 2009-10 to 22 last season, his lowest goals per game average in seven years.

Tortorella moved the right wing throughout the lineup, trying to find the line-mates that boost his production.

"I know Gabby [Marian Gaborik] is very excited that Brad is here," Rangers President Glen Sather said. "It's going to make him a much better player."

Islanders

▶ Stamkos

The Islanders were conservative in free agency, only signing Marty Reasoner this weekend.

- Steven Stamkos and Drew Doughty Should either not sign long-term pacts with their teams, the onus will be on the organization to present lucrative, multi-year offer sheets to one or both worth over $100 million.
- New Nassau Coliseum Referendum vote is Aug. 1 and Stamkos or Doughty would look very good to the voters. Grade: Inc.

Adding veteran presence

In addition to Brad Richards, the Rangers added respected veteran Mike Rupp, who will fit nicely with Brian Boyle and Brandon Prust. Organizational decision makers will be ecstatic if that line contributes 30 goals, 300 hits and kills penalties.

Re-signing Ruslan Fedotenko means one of the third line wing slots is filled, leaving a battle between Erik Christensen, Mats Zuccarello, Dale Weise and Sean Avery. Glen Sather has $15M to lock up his RFAs.

Grade: A METRO/DG

▶ Parise

Devils wait for Parise arbitration

The one must-sign is Zach Parise. They remain in arbitration for now, hoping to sign a long-term deal later.

New Jersey was limited to re-signing Andy Greene and Johan Hedberg due to the cap situation. Greene is serviceable as a defenseman, while Hedberg should keep Martin Brodeur fresh.

The Devils hope fourth-overall pick Adam Larsson becomes the defenseman they have lacked since Scott Stevens retired and Scott Niedermayer left.

Jeter adds to hit total, but Yanks shut down

Masterson pitches eight shutout innings as Yankees close road trip

Phil Hughes' return couldn't have started out much worse.

The righty came off the DL to make his first start since April 14 — and promptly walked the lead-off hitter and gave up back-to-back singles.

The Yankees lost, 5-3, and will return home to face Tampa this weekend.

By the time the bottom of the first was over, Hughes had added a wild pitch and two runs scored as well.

Hughes settled down, but it was too late thanks to the anemic Yankees offense. Derek Jeter went 1-for-3 in his quest to reach 3,000 hits, but he was one of the few to reach base. The Yankees managed just three hits through eight innings off former Red Sox Justin Masterson (7-6).

The top three hitters in the Indians' lineup meanwhile were 4-for-9 with two runs scored. Indians rookie Lonnie Chisenhall hit his first career home run.

Hughes (0-2) took the loss, but his much maligned fastball velocity did increase from his early season struggles. He was in the 92-94 mph range most of the night. He threw 88 pitches (57 strikes) and was removed after five innings.

The Yankees scored three runs in the ninth before Chris Perez closed it out. METRO

Jeter's quest for 3,000

YANKEES. Derek Jeter added one more hit, a double in the eighth, to bring his career total to 2,997.

The Yankee captain will now have three games in the Bronx to reach 3,000 hits before the All-Star Break begins on Monday. METRO

Derek Jeter is four hits shy of 3,000, and the chance to see history has more than doubled some ticket prices for the New York Yankees' next home series.

The Yankees return home for four games against the Tampa Bay Rays on July 7-10, their final series before Major League Baseball's All-Star break.

Ticket prices to the July 9 game at Yankee Stadium are averaging $165 on the secondary market, up from $77 last week, according to FanSnap.com, an Internet search engine that finds seats on about 50 ticket-reselling websites.

The average ticket price for today's series-opener against the Rays is $138, according to FanSnap, while seats to the July 8 game are being resold for $165, up 25 percent since yesterday. The average ticket cost for July 10, the final game before the All-Star break, is $158.

"The pundits may say Saturday, but the market's not so sure," Anderson said. "Tickets to Friday's and Saturday's games are both averaging $165. You can bet there are lots of fans snapping up tickets for both days as a hedge."

Average price for a July 9 ticket to Yankee Stadium – the highest average of any of the three games against Tampa Bay this weekend.

The Yankees' July 9 game against the Rays has the highest average price for the series at $235, according to SeatGeek.com, a search engine for tickets to sports events and concerts. TiqIQ.com, an event ticket aggregator that tracks listings from StubHub, eBay, TicketNetwork and TicketsNow, also has Saturday's game at Yankee Stadium as the most expensive in the series, at an average of $193.

If Jeter doesn't break the record this weekend, he won't play at home again until July 22 vs. Oakland after an eight-game road trip. BLOOMBERG

Clemens may call former teammates to defense

Witnesses

Both the defense and prosecution outlined several witnesses they may call to the stand during the trial. The list reads more like an All-Star team than a witness list.

- Andy Pettitte
  Former Yankees LHP and friend of Clemens
- Jose Canseco
  Teammate of Clemens in Toronto and admitted steroid user
- Barry Bonds
  All-time HR leader, who was also tried in perjury case in April
- Wade Boggs
  Hall of Famer who played with Clemens in Boston
- Sammy Sosa
  Former seven-time All-Star reportedly tested positive for steroids in 2003, according to The New York Times

Jury selection begins in perjury trial for ex-Yankees pitching great
Prosecution, defense lay out lists of big-time athletes that may testify

Baseball pitching great Roger Clemens may call ex-teammates to testify in his defense at his perjury trial while a prosecutor said on Wednesday he may mention or call as witnesses star players implicated in the steroids scandal.

Both sides laid out their potential strategies on the first day of the trial in which one of the greatest pitchers in baseball history has been accused of lying to Congress when he denied taking performance-enhancing drugs.

Clemens was indicted a year ago on charges he gave false statements to a U.S. congressional committee investigating steroid use in baseball, perjured himself under oath and obstructed the lawmakers' inquiry into widespread drug use that tarnished the sport's reputation.

Clemens, 48, the winner of a record seven Cy Young Awards for best pitcher in his league, has denied taking human growth hormones or steroids or lying to Congress. If convicted, sentencing guidelines call for up to 21 months in prison, though the maximum penalty is 30 years.

Defense lawyer Rusty Hardin said his list of potential witnesses include the defendant's wife, Debra Clemens, and former teammates including Hall of Famer Wade Boggs.

The prosecutor also listed Brian Cashman, the New York Yankees general manager who was with the team at the same time as Clemens.

Potential witnesses were disclosed as part of the process to select 12 jurors who will be charged with deciding Clemens' guilt or innocence. The judge and both sides wanted to make sure prospective jurors do not know any potential witnesses.

The trial will pit the word of Clemens against that of two former close associates who were listed among prosecution witnesses — former trainer Brian McNamee and former teammate Andy Pettitte.

Clemens' defense team argues his primary accuser, McNamee, is a habitual liar and trumped up the allegations and evidence about drug use to distract from his own legal problems, stemming from a 2001 sexual-assault investigation.

Judge Reggie Walton called in the first batch of potential jurors on Wednesday, gave them a written questionnaire to fill out and then asked them questions individually.

Walton also reversed himself on a key issue in the perjury trial, saying he would probably allow teammates of Clemens to testify about their steroid injections. REUTERS

HIGH QUALITY, AFFORDABLE HOMES IN THRIVING BROOKLYN

Before you DIY, do your research

Don't start swinging that hammer just yet Some planning – and maybe some hired help – can make all the difference with your next home project

DAVID SACKS

Saving money by doing home repair projects yourself sounds pretty tempting. And it all looks so easy on TV! But beware: Household jobs have a way of taking on a life of their own. So whether the plan is to fix a leaky sink or remodel the whole kitchen, first check out these tips on how to DIY the right way.

RACHEL VIGODA
letters@metro.us

Read up

Know all the steps before you start. That might mean reading articles, watching how-to videos or even signing up for a class to learn the basics — or learn that you're getting in over your head.

"Part of taking a class is possibly at the end saying, 'This isn't for me,'" says Stacey Hendricks, head of the education committee at the West Philly Tool Library in Philadelphia, which lends tools to residents in the community.

Even if you decide not to DIY, Hendricks adds, once you've done the research you'll know the right questions to ask when choosing a contractor.

STOCKBYTE

Start small

"People have to be realistic about the amount of time and work it's going to take," Hendricks cautions. He suggests testing your skills and speed with a small project. If the goal is to install hardwood floors, for example, try building a wooden shelf: "If you wind up with cut fingers and rickety shelves, you might want to hire someone for those floors."

Try teamwork

Some contractors are happy to guide homeowners through a project, for a fee, and pitch in only for the parts that call for a professional. Because, hey, some money is better than no money.

GET MORE METRO ONLINE: WWW.METRO.US/HOME

Q&A

Still not sure if you should DIY? Ask yourself these three questions, says Hendricks:

1. Will I enjoy it or hate every second?
2. Do I have enough time?
3. Is it worth the money I'll spend on materials?

INTEREST RATES COULD RISE SIGNIFICANTLY - LOCK IN TO HISTORICALLY LOW RATES AT MEADOWWOOD NOW!

Last summer, interest rates broke record lows, bottoming out at 4.42 percent – the lowest in over 40 years. Since then, interest rates have fluctuated, but could increase to historical averages, making it more important than ever to lock into current interest rates before they increase again.

At MeadowWood at Gateway, homeownership is already easy and affordable, and with still-low interest rates it's more achievable than ever. For instance, you can own a spacious, fully renovated three-bedroom with a mortgage payment as low as $1,470 per month with today's 4.5 % interest rates. In the past 5 years, interest rates have been as high as 6.75%, - which would make your monthly mortgage payment over $1,880 per month. That's a big difference – almost $5,000 a year!

Now is the time to buy a home at MeadowWood at Gateway and lock in still-low interest rates – secure your future and lock in housing costs now and avoid paying someone else more and more rent each year!

Want to know more? Attend out FREE homebuyer seminar this Saturday, July 9th at 1pm to learn more about the various financing options available and how easy homeownership at MeadowWood can be! Call 888.621.7954 or visit MeadowWoodatGateway.com today!

Keeping cool in summer heat

There are better ways to do it than sticking your head in the freezer We got top tips from an HGTV pro

It may feel nice to keep the air-conditioning on full blast — but when you do that, you're running your energy costs sky-high and doing Mother Nature no favors. We spoke with Taniya Nayak, host of HGTV's "House Hunters on Vacation," for better tips for beating the heat.

▶ Nayak

▶ Choose your fabrics wisely
Whether it's window treatments or pillows, cotton and linen are great, lightweight choices, she says.

▶ Replace your rugs
"If you have a heavy carpet, a really inexpensive solution is to pick up a natural-fiber jute rug. They're very nautical, so it gives you that sense of coolness. You feel like you're on the beach."

▶ Paint zen colors
"Light, more powdery pastel colors are very cooling and soothing. You could even go tan as long as it's a grayish, taupy tan."

▶ Add white window shades
"They're white so they'll reflect the light off. Cellular or honeycomb shades are awesome too, because they almost trap the heat in the cellular compartments of the shade."

▶ Work with nature
"If you plant trees on the south or west sides of your house, it'll keep it cooler in the summer — but it'll actually keep it warmer in the winters because the sun sets and rises on the opposite side in winter."

BRAND X PICTURES

▶ Step away from the refrigerator: We've got alternative ways to stay cool.

▶ Stay away during midday
Do dishes, wash and dry your clothes and cook in the morning or night. "You're just trying to avoid that midday heat — that's when it's the worst."

▶ Think long-term
"If you're going to live there for awhile, add insulation to your attic. It'll dramatically reduce the heat that's in your house."

▶ Don't underestimate a fan
"Every person always wants to take them out. I love to fall asleep under a fan in my bedroom. There are nice styles to them now."

Mortgage applications decrease nationwide

Mortgage applications decreased 5.2 percent nationwide for the week ending July 1, according to weekly data from the Mortgage Bankers Association. Refinancing also fell 9.2 percent from the previous week, marking three consecutive weeks of decreases and its lowest level since May 6.

The refinance share of mortgage activity decreased to 66.4 percent of total applications from 69.5 percent the previous week. The adjustable-rate mortgage share of activity increased to 6.1 percent from 5.8 percent of total applications from the previous week.

The average contract interest rate for 30-year fixed-rate mortgages increased to 4.69 percent from 4.46 percent. The average contract interest rate for 15-year fixed-rate mortgages increased to 3.79 percent from 3.64 percent.

"Refinance activity, already constrained by a smaller pool of eligible borrowers, declined in response to the higher rates, but purchase applications picked up appreciably in the week before the July Fourth holiday," said Michael Fratantoni, MBA's vice president of research and economics.
